White Men Keep Out!

Discontented Indians Almost on Verge War

(This is the 13th chapter of "The Strangers," a searching report on the plight of B.C.'s native Indians

By G. E. MORTIMORE

As late as the 1920's, some British Columbia Indians were arresting white men for trespass and haling them into tribal courts.

A startled timber cruiser traveling through the country north of the Skeena River, 30 miles from Hazelton, in September, 1924, found himself a prisoner of the people of Kitwancool village. He was brought before the chiefs of the village, warned off Kitwancool property, and sent on his way. A tribal spokesman who had attended mission schools made this statement to him in fluent English:

"We beg to state that it was the wish of our ancestors as it is our wish that all the products of that area north of the nine-mile post in this valley and for a distance in that direction of 115 miles by 60 miles east and west, remain ours.

"When we effect a settlement with the government we will dispose of the said products on a royalty basis, but until that time no white man shall enter there, and you are requested to return at once."

The inhabitants of Kitwancool, a people of the Tsimshian language group, have long been stoutly independent. Before the coming of the whites, they waged a punitive war against the now-extinct Tsetsaut of the Stickine, an Athapascan-speaking people, and conquered a sizeable tract of country from them.

This conquered territory formed part of the area which they claimed and still claim, even though the white men assert that their only lands are the small territory assigned to them as a reserve.

By Treaty or Force

"They have never been a party to any agreement to relinquish their title, either by treaty or by force," points out Wilson Duff, provincial museum anthropologist, in a report.

"They do not recognize the right of the government to set aside little plots of land as reserves."

When a Royal commission on Indian reserves visited Kitwancool in 1915, they laid claim to the whole tract of land which they felt to be theirs by tradition.

The commissioners said they could not settle the issue of land title. The Indian spokesman insisted that his people did not want "little reserves."

But Mr. Loring, Indian agent, made a claim on their behalf. They were granted three small areas including their village site, a total of about 1,700 acres. They had claimed 6,900 square miles.

Haidas of the Queen Charlottes also refused to meet the reserve commission. As a result, they were allotted tiny patches of land.

The white men had manoeuvred the Indians into such a position that they were wrong whichever way they jumped. If they accepted reserves, the whites could argue that their acceptance showed that they were content with a fairly small amount of land. This (the white people maintained) wiped out any Indian claim to the larger territory.

If they refused to accept reserves, they might find themselves without a square foot of land.

But the Kitwancool people stuck to their principles. A surveying party came to Kitwancool in 1927 to lay out the reserve. The people warned them to stop. When the surveyors tried to continue their work in defiance of the warning, the Indians attacked them.

Leaders Went to Jail

Six Kitwancool leaders went to jail. While they were locked up, the reserve was surveyed. The people still do not accept its boundaries.

Peter Williams, the courtly but strong-minded old gentleman who is president of Kitwancool village, attended a meeting of B.C. Indian delegates under auspices of the Indian affairs branch in Vancouver in April this year, and argued the case.

His people are incensed about the fact that the provincial government has granted a forest management license to Columbia Cellulose Co. in the ancestral territory of the Kitwancool. They feel that no timber should be alloted until the three-cornered controversy involving the Dominion, the province and the Kitwancool is settled.

The Kitwancool, once hunters, are mostly loggers now. They would like the timber for themselves. And they claim that Columbia Cellulose is wasting timber and destroying fur-bearing animals.

Peter Williams was one of those who went to jail in defiance of what he considered to be the lands of his tribe. In

Framework of 11-Storey Building Collapses

No one was injured when the steel skeleton of a Toronto building collapsed into this spaghetti-like mass of girders, but seconds before, a bus with 45 passengers had turned up a side street and avoided the falling beams. The structure, shown above before the collapse, was being erected on a new principle which would have the supporting beams on the outside allowing maximum floor space in the interior. People for blocks around were shaken by the noise, many believing that an atom bomb had been dropped. Construction men blame the steel and not the foundation for the collapse.

Night Air Drop Reported

Quemoy Lifeline in Peril As Reds Resume Barrage

TAIPEI (CP) — Communist China early today resumed an all-out bombardment of the Nationalist-held Quemoy islands.

There were reports circulating on Formosa that the Nationalists had begun a night air drop to the beleaguered islands, but an air force spokesman said no air drop was being carried out. The Nationalists normally supply the islands by ship and not by air.

The report of the air drop came as stormy weather in Formosa Strait stopped the United States 7th Fleet from convoying the supply run to beleaguered Quemoy Tuesday.

TOUGH TIME

At the same time the 7th Fleet's commander, Vice-Admiral Wallace M. Beakley, acknowledged that the Nationalists are going to have a tough time dealing with Communist shore guns which threaten to cut Quemoy's lifeline.

The Reds kept up a sporadic artillery bombardment of Quemoy Tuesday and intensified it again during the night. This made aircraft landings on Quemoy hazardous.

GUNFIRE ANSWERED

The defence ministry said Nationalist guns answered Tuesday's Red gunfire, but refused to disclose the intensity of the return barrages. It seemed the Nationalists did not match the Reds round for round because they are wary of wasting ammunition.

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles hinted yesterday that the United States is ready to offer concessions if Red China will renounce the use of force in the Formosa Straits.

Dulles told a press conference he could not go into details in advance of expected diplomatic talks with Red China at Warsaw.

At the same time Dulles emphasized again that the U.S. believes it is essential to the free world's "defence posture" in the Far East to maintain a firm stand against Red Chinese threats to conquer Nationalist-held islands in the Formosa Straits.

Montreal Probes Graft

MONTREAL (UPI)—Charges that $1,000,000 worth of equipment disappeared, new equipment was deliberately damaged and unneeded equipment was purchased set off an investigation of the city public works department Tuesday.

Councillor Raymond Mondor charged that six telephone switchboards and 75 parking meters vanished and thousands of dollars worth of street lights were destroyed.

Some 300 barrels of white traffic paint were bought without a requisition while between 250 and 300 gallons of fresh paint was burned in unopened containers, he charged.

Red Warns U.S.

Russia and China's security and interests "are inseparable," Mikhail Suslov, senior ranking Soviet leader after Premier Khrushchev, said in Moscow yesterday. It was another warning that any attack on Red China would be regarded as an attack on Russia.

New Canadian Laws

U.S. Protests Anti-Dumping

OTTAWA (CP)—The United States has formally protested new Canadian legislation tightening anti-dumping laws charging it is a violation of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

External Affairs Minister Smith said Tuesday night he has not yet seen the formal protest, although he said he was informed of its contents verbally "some time ago."

Mr. Smith said at first in an interview the protest had been received Tuesday, rather than a week ago as reported by the U.S. Embassy here.

He corrected this afterwards through a spokesman who said the protest was received "some time ago" and the minister was informed of its contents. The spokesman did not say when the written protest was received, or whether it was received before the legislation received royal assent Saturday.

Trade Minister Churchill in a separate interview Tuesday night said he had not been informed of any protest.

Neither minister would comment further.

U.S. Embassy officials said the note was delivered to the external affairs department last Wednesday, but as yet they have received no direct reply. They noted that meantime the legislation was passed.

Expert Sure H-Bombs Ruin Weather

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters) — A Canadian professor said Tuesday it was "very likely" that hydrogen bomb tests have caused disastrous weather around the world.

William Henry Parker, assistant professor of geography at the University of Manitoba, suggested weather men might be wiser to ponder rather ridicule the theory that nuclear blasts affect the weather.

He said since nuclear tests had started the world's weather had been unprecedented for its tornadoes, hurricanes and violent storms.

He said H-bomb tests were likely the cause of the freak summer storms which have hit England, destroying wide sections of crop land.

The 45-year-old assistant professor came to England in May to take his doctorate in historical geography at Oxford University.

"In North America there has been a sharp increase in tornado frequency and these vertical horrors now have appeared in this country where previously they were virtually unknown," he said.

He pointed out that when a volcanic island blew up in the Pacific its fine dust particles gave a succession of wet and cloudy summers throughout the world.

He said he wondered whether the increasing radioactivity of rain might be connected with the increased turbulence in the atmosphere.

Gulf Oil Enters Politics

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gulf Oil Corporation notified its 161,000 employees, stock holders and dealers Tuesday that it is going to take an active part in politics in order to oppose the political power of organized labor.

Senior Vice-President Archie D. Gray said in a letter:

"If we are to survive, labor's political power must now be opposed by matching force."

Employees, shareholders and dealers will receive reports on the views, attendance records and voting records of senators and congressmen.

Did He Fail?

Arriving in Beirut, Lebanon last night on his Middle East peace mission, UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold was reported optimistic but there were reports he had failed to bring agreement between King Hussein and President Nasser on Jordan.

Screams, Moans

Father Beater Guilty

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Daniel Cole, 60, Stayton, Ore., was found guilty here Tuesday on a charge of assault and battery on his 88-year-old father last June.

The father, Eugent W. Cole, was found living in squalor in a run-down trailer house within an electric fence enclosure behind his son's home. Police investigated after complaints of screams and moans were heard coming from the heavily-shrubbed Cole property.

Testimony indicated Tuesday that although the elder Cole was physically unable to testify during the trial he had increased his weight from 90 to 123 pounds since being put in nursing home.

Sentencing was set for Thursday by Marion County district court Judge E. O. Stadter, Jr. Cole denied the charge during court proceedings.

A maximum sentence of a year in jail and $500 fine can be levied on conviction.

Riot Guns Guard School Bus

NELSON (CP) — RCMP officers armed with tear gas grenades and a riot gun escorted 28 children on a school bus from Crescent Valley and South Slocan schools into the Sons of Freedom headquarters at Krestova yesterday.

They had been warned by a mob of irate Freedomite women the bus might be attacked. Mob violence was expected this morning when the school bus returns to Krestova to collect the children.

Dried Cod Fly In Fishy War

OFF ICELAND (Reuters)—The British trawler King Sol reported Tuesday night it rammed the Icelandic gunboat Odin off the northwest coast of Iceland and "made a right nice mark in his bow."

The King Sol reported that the Odin "tried to come alongside from aft so I went astern into him . . ." The trawler added that the Odin put a grapnel over its side and tried to foul the trawler nel.

"I went full astern and have the grapnel as evidence," the King Sol skipper radioed.

Earlier, it was reported that Icelanders aboard the Odin pelted the trawler Loch Fleet with dried cod. The Loch Fleet said it retaliated "in like manner."

This battle of the cod followed Monday's incident in which trawler men in the Stella Corona pus used potatoes and broomhandles to repel Icelanders who attempted to board them.

Seven unarmed Icelanders, led by a petty officer and all wearing lifejackets, stood on the deck as their gunboat came alongside.

"We pushed the gunboat off with broom handles," a seaman said. "The catering staff were well supplied with rather moldy potatoes.

"We let fly with potatoes and scored one or two hits, including one on a camera held by a man aft who seemed to be a press man.'

It May Be Old Spanish Custom But Kiss Cost $25 Fine in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Kissing a strange woman may be a compliment in Spain but it is an assault in Vancouver, a city magistrate ruled Tuesday.

Augustin Orbegozo, 27, was fined $25 by Magistrate Gordon Scott Tuesday when he was found guilty of common assault. He had originally been charged with indecent assault.

Court was told Orbegozo kissed the 37-year-old manageress of a Granville Street arcade.

A defence witness testified that in Orbegozo's native Spain it was considered a compliment when a man kissed a strange woman.

Criminal Negligence Charge

Five Men, Car, Wine Add Up to Tragedy

NANAIMO—Combination of five young men and a gallon of wine ended in tragedy a fall assize court heard here yesterday.

First of seven, possibly 10 cases on the assize docket, trial of Melvin Edward Hanson, 27, on criminal negligence charge, commenced the fall sitting before Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane and a jury of 10 men and two women.

Hanson is charged in connection with the traffic death Jan. 24 of Charles Norval Petre, 28, killed on a crash on the Duncan-Lake Cowichan highway in the early evening.

SEVEN WITNESSES

Seven witnesses, including Dr. James J. Morrow and Const. Norman Harvey-McKeen, had been called to 4 p.m. yesterday.

Two of the witnesses, Larry Dale Ketch, Youbou, and Robert A. James Clarkson, were passengers in Hanson's car on the night of the tragedy.

Ketch, cousin of the deceased man, Petrie, told the court he, Hanson, Clarkson, Petrie and another cousin, Bob Ketch, were returning from Duncan towards Lake Cowichon, after buying a gallon of wine.

"Everyone had had a drink," he recalled, though he noted Hanson and Petrie had consumed the most.

He said they had stopped to buy two tires at a gas station near the highway, then proceeded toward Lake Cowichan.

About this time an argument ensued over "who was the best driver." Clarkson had been driving the car (owned by Hanson's sister) up to this time.

Extricating themselves from the pole, they continued on their way, but were forced to return to the gas station to fill up with gas. Here a ruckus ensued, during which Ketch explained Hanson struck Petrie and Bob Ketch, Clarkson apparently left the party here.

Hanson then took control of the car and drove to friend Sidney Le Blanc's house further up the highway. Ketch said Hanson was driving very fast at this time and resisted all attempts to slow him down. They passed an acquaintance's car on the way.

MORE DRINK

At Le Blanc's, Hanson had more drink, while Petrie was sick. Then they left on their way to Lake Cowichan. The accident occurred shortly afterward.

"Hanson was pretty drunk here," Ketch noted. Garage-owner Oscar Manglson also noted Hanson "wasn't sober," though he "wouldn't say he was drunk."

Case is expected to conclude this morning, and will be followed by trial of a similar charge against Robert E. Steele, Albernt.

Recognition 'Pledged'

COURTENAY, B.C. (CP)—Canada has pledged itself to eventually recognize Communist China, CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said Monday night.

"I have seen the document," said Coldwell, addressing a meeting of the Comox district Canadian Club.

"At the Colombo Conferference held in Ceylon in December, 1949, it was agreed that the Commonwealth nations would sooner or later recognize the government of China.

White Men Keep Out, Indians' Ruling

the eyes of the Kitwancool, the Indian land title controversy is no a dead historical issue, but a contemporary fight for justice.

Did the Indians truly regard themselves in pre-white days as owners of the land? Their attitude varied from region to region.

The Kitwancool felt that they owned all their territory, with its fishing streams, valleys and mountains where they trapped and hunted furs and meat, and gathered berries, roots and shoots.

Certain other Indian peoples, including some of the Salish in southern B.C., did not think of themselves as owning land, but as having rights to a berry thicket, root patch, clam beach or a good fishing spot on a stream or a reef of the sea where they placed nets.

Such locations were owned by a family or a village. Anyone could travel over the land between. But no one could take possession of the fishing spot or block access to it.

Other peoples claimed large hunting territories with definite boundaries. They ranged over their territories, with a winter village in one place, a summer fishing camp elsewhere; but they thought all the territory theirs.

The general British policy, set forth in the Royal proclamation of 1763 and in despatches to colonial governors, was to pay the Indians for the land, even though their idea of ownership was not the European one. But B.C., colony and province, steadfastly rejected Indian ownership.

Federal and provincial authorities met head-on in 1875 when B.C. passed a new Crown lands act. The Federal government served notice that the act would be disallowed by the governor-general-in-council, because it contained no recognition of Indian title.

The Hon. Edward Blake, then minister of justice, said: "The act . . . is objectionable, as tending to deal with lands which are assumed to be the absolute property of the province, an assumption which completely ignores . . . the honor and good faith with which the Crown has, in all other cases since its sovereignty (in) North America, dealt with the various Indian tribes."

LITTLE LATER

A little later, the Federal government mysteriously drifted away from this position and allowed the act to go into force after machinery had been set up for the choosing of Indian reserves. Yet Lord Dufferin, governor-general, on a visit to Victoria in September, 1876, bluntly declared that it was the duty of the province to recognize Indian title.

The Dominion and the province continued to haggle over reserves. The Dominion wanted fairly large reserves on the scale of Eastern Canada. The province argued that the Indians in most places needed only land to live on, small fishing and hunting bases and burial sites.

The Dominion asked for 80 acres a family. The province began with 10, and came up to 20, an amount which the Dominion was inclined to accept. Then the respected missionary, William Duncan of Metlakatla, suggested that land should be given on the basis of need rather than by set acreage. This suggestion was accepted.

CONSOLIDATED AREAS

Another idea of Duncan's, to set up consolidated areas where large bodies of Indians could be resettled as economic units, according to language divisions, was never carried out.

A joint Dominion-provincial commission was set up in 1876 to allocate reserves. The work dragged along for 30 years, first in the hands of the commission, then (1899) under direction of the superintendent of Indian affairs for B.C.

In 1909 the province said it would allot no more reserves, though it would consider purchase or exchange.

UNSPOKEN GRIEVANCES

Meanwhile, unspoken Indian grievances over land had been taking shape in protests, as settlement closed in upon the Indians, and the latter began to realize how small their reserves were.

Nass and Skeena River Indians said they had been promised that sites at the opening of valleys would give them control of the valleys. But the whites began moving in. Cattle country Indians who had lived on their reserves and pastured cattle on Crown land got a nasty surprise when whites began taking up the Crown land and squeezing them out.

—Some white settlers considered themselves hard done by and the Indians pampered. A debate in the House of Commons, April 21, 1880, gives some of the flavor of the controversy.

IDYLLIC RELATIONSHIP

F. J. Barnard, MP for Yale, said that an idyllic relationship had existed between whites and Indians, until reserve commissioners were appointed.

"The commissioner . . . seemed to think that all he had to do was give the Indians whatever land he fancied, whether it was the property of the government or of actual bona fide settlers, and that not only was he to receive this land, but certain fishing rights, or streams, should be secured to him, even if this land could only be obtained by interference with the whites.

" . . . These fishing stations are scattered throughout the country. The fish has little value as an article of food. Securing the fishing stations only tends to encourage the Indians in habits of idleness, and seriously retards his civilization.

FIXED INDUSTRY

"I do not refer to the salmon fisheries. These are a fixed industry and necessary to the sustenance of a number of families who . . . do not seek land for cultivation, relying entirely on trading with other tribes for dried salmon . . ."

Commercial fishing, and trading—the white man's way—was all right. But fishing for food, and the suspicion of idleness between seasons, was sinful heathenism, it seemed.

"We contend that it is wrong to afford Indians an opportunity of following nomadic habits, instead of encouraging them to engage in agriculture, and to settle on land allotted to them . . ." Furthermore, Mr. Barnard complained, land was being taken away from settlers and given to the Indians.

VERGE OF WAR

Replied Hon. David Mills, MP for Bothwell, Ont.: "When British Columbia's reserve commissioner was appointed, the Indians were so discontented that they were on the verge of war . . . In many instances, the whites had rented the lands from the Indians to get possession, and they were no sooner in occupation than they applied to the government as occupants of public lands, and obtained pre-emption rights, thus practising a fraud on the Indians . . .

"In some instances these lands have been taken from these parties and restored to the Indians . . . It is . . . obvious that many (settlers) do not regard the Indians as having any rights to the occupation of the lands; and unless the government stand by the Indians a very small measure of justice is likely to be meted out to them."

"The Hon. gentleman has made a charge against the people of British Columbia," said Amor De Cosmos, MP for Victoria, using a standard rabble-rouser's device to put an opponent in the wrong. Mills had only made a charge against some of the people.

Until confederation, De Cosmos said, "we had no trouble with our Indians . . . Our whole cost for the management of Indian affairs was only from $500 to $1,000 per annum; but from the false policy of dealing with the Indians adopted by the late government the expenses now amount to $50,000 a year."

He said that the people of B.C. wanted to give Indians all the land they could use, and treat them as equals. He did not answer Mills' allegations of fraud. Instead, he charged someone else with fraud—the persons who had negotiated treaties with Indians, elsewhere in Canada.

"The Indians were told that they were the original and rightful owners of the lands . . . rivers and lakes. The whites wanted their land; they knew its great and increasing value; they offered them presents and annuities and reserves, bearing no proportion hardly to its real and prospective value.

JEWEL FOR A TOY

"The Indians were treated similarly to a child who surrendered a . . . jewel for a bauble or toy. The proper way ought to have been to ignore the so-called Indian title. The Indians should have been told that the white man had just as good a right to share with them in the possession of lands as they had; that his right to all he could use would be respected, but his so-called title to land that he had not made and could never use, would be disregarded.

"Had such a policy obtained there would have been no deception and no heavy expenditure for Indian annuities. Such had been the policy of British Columbia and it had worked well."

The logic of Mr. De Cosmos did not bear close examination. He asserted that Indians outside B.C. had been paid too little; yet on the other hand he argued that they should have been paid nothing. Except for Hollanders who reclaimed the sea bottom, nobody "made" their own land. European landowners were not required to use all their land to retain possession of it.

Two schools of thought were summed up by Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, MP for Lambton, Ont., and by Mr. De Cosmos. Mr. Mackenzie said:

"If we had pursued the course the hon. gentleman has propounded . . . we would have had Indian wars desolating the whole country. I maintain that we have no right to the soil until we arrange with those who inhabited the country originally, and if we have paid too little for the lands that was the fault of the negotiators."

Said Mr. De Cosmos: "I am not one of those who wish . . . that Indians should be treated other than as human beings. On the other hand, I have no wish . . . that Indians should be treated any better than white men. If an Indian wishes to cultivate land let him have it on the same terms as a white man. With regard to the fisheries, I am opposed to their having privileges which are not accorded to white men."

But the white men were far ahead of the Indians in education, and guile. Treating them as equals meant that the whites would have the advantage of them, and soon gain possession of their lands. This was the case for protecting the Indians, and the answer to Mr. De Cosmos.

(Latter-day critics, however, have asserted that the Indians were protected too much, and their independence destroyed.)

Special rights, such as fishing in certain places, were looked upon by some as proper payment for the land and liberty which the whites had taken from the Indians. But the B.C. authorities did not admit that they owed the Indians anything.

The Indians felt they had powerful allies. They looked for redress of their grievances to the King and the Privy Council in London.

Indian Integration Speedup Requested

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian lawyers yesterday called upon the federal government to take steps to speed up the integration of Indians into the economic and social community in which they live, without prejudicing their rights as Indians.

Lawyers are members of the civil liberties committee of the Canadian Bar Association, assembled for its annual meeting in Toronto. The watchdog committee championed the rights of Indians in passing a number of resolutions.

In the first working day of the week-long meeting more than 500 lawyers from across Canada heard Arthur Kelly of Toronto, in his presidential address, call for a meeting of judges, lawyers and laymen to bring about uniformity in Canada law.

Mystery Illness Killing Ducks

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Hunters report that hundreds of dead ducks are floating on King's Lake in southern Alberta.

Clarence Sawyer, fish and game officer at Lethbridge, said the ducks were victims of a yet-to-be-identified disease which becomes pronounced among waterfowl frequenting shallow bodies of water during extremely hot and dry weather. Thousands of Manitoba ducks have died this year from what is believed to be the same illness.

Auto Output Dips Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's output of motor vehicles hit the skids in August, taking a 52-per-cent nosedive from that of August last year.

The August production was 9,485 units compared with 18,949 in August, 1957. It lowered the January-August total to 250,361 from 318,271 in the similar period of last year.

Passenger car production took the steepest drop in August, going down to 5,925 from 15,054 a year earlier. The January-August total was 210,454 compared with 263,778.

Razors, Hatchets Used in Riots London Court Told

LONDON (Reuters)—A London court heard details Tuesday of race riots while a cabinet minister said it [illegible] on grounds of race, color or creed.

Eight Negroes and two white men were committed for trial on charges of unlawfully fighting in West London a week ago.

Policemen told a seeing a gang of Negro men carrying knives, clubs, hatchets, razors and iron bars. They said one group shouted to white people standing in doorways and at windows: "Come out and fight."

MILK BOTTLES

Other incidents described by the police included white people throwing milk bottles at a crowd of West Indians and a white man and a woman pushed off the sidewalk by a Negro who brandished a 12-inch knife.

Meanwhile, in Birmingham, two young Scots who threw eggs at a West Indian medical student were jailed for two months.

DON'T PANIC

A cabinet minister said these racial incidents should not panic Britain into ending its open-door policy for Commonwealth peoples.

Lord Mancroft, minister without portfolio, told a Variety Club luncheon:

A DISASTER

"I think it would be a disaster if we too easily or too readily overthrew the fundamental right of any one of Her Majesty's subjects, regardless of race, color or creed, to come to Her Majesty's country and ask for admittance."

Mancroft said the only satisfying aspect of the disorders had been "the almost universal and violent disapproval expressed by all sections of the community."

PEACE CAMPAIGN

In Nottingham, scene of race clashes two weeks ago, a movement has started among the city's 4,000-strong non-white population for a "make the peace" campaign.

Smartie at a Loss

Quizzer Really Stuck

NEW YORK (AP) — It finally happened—one of those smart TV quiz show contestants got stuck in the isolation booth Tuesday.

The victim was John Burns, 25, who with his wife, Lorraine, has been appearing on the show "Who Do You Trust?"

The Burnses had won $3,000 and were trying for more when Burns stepped into the booth.

After answering the questions, Burns tried to open the door of the booth. At the same time Cindy Lindt, an assistant to quiz master Johnny Carson, tried to help and turned the knob on the outside.

Working in opposite directions, they stripped the set screw and the knob wouldn't work. Finally, while Carson adlibbed, Burns gave it up and sat down in the booth to wait for help.

A couple of stagehands came to the rescue with a screw driver. They took the hinges off the door.

Wives Swapped, All Good Friends

Symphony, Gallery Talks

Cultural Chief Coming to City

Brooke Claxton, former federal defence minister, will visit Victoria Sept. 17 to 22 in his capacity as chairman of the Canada Council.

He will hold business meetings with the boards of directors of Victoria Symphony and Greater Victoria Art Gallery, only local organizations to receive council grants to date.

The symphony group, which has been given $10,000 for new programs, indicated at a meeting last night the bulk of the money would be spent on concerts for school children.

No decision was made on whether these three or four concerts would start this fall or early next year. John Gough and H. J. Bigsby, who are planning the events, urged that a committee of teachers be established to help choose the music and that most of the music "be something relatively familiar to the children."

Closed Doors for Honors

John D. 'Sneaks' to Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker paid a surprise visit to Windsor Tuesday and made no bones about expressing his desire for privacy.

He arrived unannounced on an early-morning train. His welcoming party consisted of Norman Spencer and Richard Thrasher, Progressive Conservative MPs for Essex West and Essex South respectively.

Officially Mr. Diefenbaker was visiting here to receive the 33rd degree of the Supreme Council, ancient and Scottish Rite of Canada. The order is holding its annual convention here this week.

Ontario's Premier Leslie Frost and federal Finance Minister Fleming were also in town. Mr. Fleming was conferred with the 33rd degree four years ago.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Frost were among 50 Canadians receiving the 33rd degree Tuesday night at a closed session of the order.

After breakfasting in his private car, the prime minister took a stroll up Ouellette Avenue, a main business street. He posed for a picture and then asked newsmen to give him an hour and a half to himself.

Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker took a quick motor tour of Detroit, then drove to Amherstburg where they visited historic Fort Malden.

No formal civic receptions or other official functions were scheduled for the prime minister.

He and Mrs. Diefenbaker are expected to leave Windsor by plane today flying to Prince Albert, Sask., for a four-day vacation.

Shadowy Band of Defenders

Rangers on Guard Without Glory, Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — The government for the first time has revealed the strength of a shadowy band of volunteers who patrol Canada's remotest areas on the lookout for any enemy landings.

There are 2,690 personnel in the Canadian Rangers, comprising trappers, woodsmen, prospectors, miners, farmers and others who live in sparsely-settled regions of Canada, particularly the north and some coastal areas.

The army is extremely close-mouthed about formations and operations of the Rangers. They are organized in companies across Canada but exactly how they operate has never been disclosed.

VITAL ROLE

The Rangers might be called on to play a vital role in event of air attack on Canada. They may report any suspicious activities, round up enemy agents or saboteurs, act as coast or air observers or perform rescue work.

In event of any enemy landings in Canada, the Rangers could become this country's first guerrilla fighters.

The Rangers have the status of organized militia. They are not referred to in any public documents and identity of the band's members is largely unknown.

UNPAID MILITIA

They are unpaid unless placed on active service or employed with the regular army for northern exercises or attendance at a regular army training school.

Each Ranger is issued a rifle and ancillary equipment worth at the most $42.

Nearly all spend most of their time outdoors and are in excellent physical condition to withstand the rigors of cold and other hardships. They can operate alone for weeks at a time and can, for the most part, live off the land.

Fingerprint Doctors Coroner Suggests

CHICAGO (UPI)—A stricken, tearful widow told a coroner's inquest that her husband died a few hours after he was treated by an ex-mental patient masquerading as a doctor.

The ex-mental patient and former convict, Peter J. Frank, 32, treated more than 130 Chicagoans during a month-long imposture as a doctor this summer and in 1954. At least five of his patients died, but authorities have been unable to establish whether Frank was to blame.

Coroner Walter J. McCarron, astounded at the disclosures of how doctors, hospitals, nurses and patients accepted Frank as a bona fide doctor, demanded that Chicago physicians be fingerprinted to guard against other impersonaters.

"How do we know there aren't a thousand Peter J. Franks operating in this city?" he asked. "What's wrong with fingerprinting the American Medical Association and members of the medical profession? Why are these people so high and aloof?"

Fight Service Cuts Union Urges Public

MONTREAL (CP) — A railway union official has urged that the public oppose the CNR bid to curtail its trans-continental train service for the winter.

L. C. Malone, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said an aroused public could protest to the Board of Transport Commissioners to have the railway revoke its decision.

Both he and W. E. Gamble of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) expressed serious concern over the loss of job opportunities for railway workers because of the cut in service.

The railway's move means that eight trains — four eastbound and four westbound — will be withdrawn Oct. 26 from the Montreal-Vancouver run. Decision to eliminate the CNR's Continental train was made after a two-year survey of traffic movements showed a sharp decrease in the number of winter passengers.

MONTREAL (CP)—The trainmen's union has served notice on the railways demanding immediate resumption of contract talks without waiting for the railways to settle their $38,000,000 wage dispute with the 15 non-operating unions, it was learned Tuesday.

'Disrupting Plans'

Doukhobors Throw Two Out of Town

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—A man who had been accused of disrupting Sons of Freedom plans for a migration to Russia was ejected from the Freedomite capital of Krestova Tuesday.

John Lebadoff, the former Freedomite leader who was deposed by Stefan Sorokin, was escorted from the village yesterday by 25 women and taken four miles to Crescent Valley. Ejected with Lebadoff was Mary Berekoff of Creston.

Sons of Freedom spokesman in the village maintained that Lebadoff and Mrs. Berekoff were touring the village in continuing efforts to dissuade Sons of Freedom from returning to Russia. They were also accused, the spokesman said, with trying to encourage the members of the sect to send their children to Canadian schools.

Home Construction Reaches New Heights

OTTAWA (CP) — Starts and completions in the construction of new homes rose to record heights in the first seven months of 1958, the bureau of statistics reported this week.

Starts rose to 88,177 homes, up from 62,359 last year and the previous high of 76,131 in 1956. Homes completed increased to 67,968, compared with 59,145 last year and 67,675 in 1956.

WORMS
A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms or Round-Worms — ugly parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of these ugly pests, they must be killed in the intestines where they live and multiply. And clinical tests have proved that JAYNE'S LIQUID VERMIFUGE kills both Pin-Worms and Round-Worms quickly and easily. Then they are expelled from the system in a normal manner and you are free of them.

JAYNE'S LIQUID VERMIFUGE has a pleasant, fruity taste. Children love it—take it without fuss or fret.

Remember, Pin-Worms and Round-Worms are highly contagious and can spread through the whole family.

British Columbia Honored

DISTINGUISHED representatives of four Commonwealth lands arrived in the province yesterday to take part in British Columbia's centennial celebrations as official guests of the provincial government. Ceylon, Pakistan, Ghana and Malaya—old in the world but relatively new in their independent status within the union of Commonwealth nations—are in themselves symbolic of the times. Their spokesmen are alike in that they speak the language of trade and commerce, international discussion and current economics from a Commonwealth as well as a national viewpoint. All of them are eager to acquaint themselves better with the Canadian West.

This widening of the range of thought and co-operative interest around the Commonwealth is one of the sincere gains of the present century. Its genesis may not always have been easy, but there can be no two questions about the strength of the developing result. More than ever before, the Commonwealth has a world-wide outlook, a specific first-hand knowledge of every hemisphere and, underlying all, the steadying purpose of a union of aims and abiding principles. The postwar world has not been a settled one, nor have the duties of public office lessened in upset times. Despite that, there is arising throughout the Commonwealth a new sense of dedication and encouraging fresh impulse from peoples emerging as independent nations in their own right.

Canada is honored by visits such as this, and their timely reminder that we, too, are part of the common stock of the greatest parliamentary democracy the world has ever witnessed. British Columbia has many reasons to be sincerely proud of its own development in the last 100 years, but it is only when that is regarded in context with what has been happening around the Commonwealth that its horizon can be identified. One trusts that the stay of our Commonwealth friends in British Columbia will be pleasing and profitable, and that they will draw from us—as they are undoubtedly leaving with us—a sense of unity and purpose dedicated to the weal of mankind.

Must Defeat Be Accepted?

DIFFICULTIES in the way of staff recruitment have been ascribed by Provincial Secretary Black as the reason for suspension of plans for establishment of a new 1,500-bed hospital for the mentally ill on Vancouver Island. If that is the sole reason for this disappointing decision it is strange to see the Social Credit government giving in to the situation, however frustrating it may appear to be. When problems appear this government does not as a rule acknowledge defeat, and is noted even among opponents for its determination to surmount obstacles.

According to Mr. Black, whose department and not that of health and welfare has jurisdiction over mental institutions, inability to find sufficient numbers of trained mental hospital workers is the cause of suspension of what is generally recognized as an urgently needed project. Even now, he says, the Essondale institution is functioning with a staff too small for requirements. On top of this, though not mentioned by Mr. Black, there will be staff demands for the hospital for mental defectives at Kamloops when Tranquille Sanitorium is converted to that purpose.

That being the case, has the department any proposals in mind whereby an extremely important avocation might be made more attractive to men and women choosing a career? Nursing the mentally ill is a highly specialized occupation requiring attributes beyond those suitable for ordinary nursing. While it may be hard to overcome disinclination to take up care of the insane as a profession, something obviously must be done. Population increase and a rising incidence of mental disease combine to make this a matter of considerable urgency.

The announced postponement of plans for a new hospital on the Island—where the present one has long been acknowledged as hopelessly inadequate—will come as a bitter disappointment to organizations devoting their energies to promotion of modern treatment of mental illness. While intention to proceed with the Island project was first announced by the present government four years ago, hopes and plans for a new mental hospital go back many years beyond that, to the time when money was the only stumbling block.

Build the Ships Here

SINCE bids have been invited from all over Canada for building the two Swartz Bay ferries there might seem to be an anomaly in the assurance given Esquimalt Council that local shipyards will receive "every consideration." These two aspects do not jibe. The widespread tenders sought might of course be a reminder to local yards that their bids must be kept down if they are to expect a contract. To this degree Mr. Gaglardi's remark that all work done must be on a competitive basis has some warrant.

Nevertheless this a case where employment should be given at home. A ferry each should be allotted to Victoria and Vancouver. Any seemingly cheaper bid from outside would be an illusion, and in fact could cost B.C. money. If the contract goes elsewhere all the labor costs will be spent outside the province, probably also the major part or all of the material costs. By contrast expenditures kept within B.C. mean a large return to the provincial coffers by way of taxation.

A somewhat similar argument can be advanced in connection with the claim to have at least one of the proposed navy destroyers built locally. Here also an assurance of "consideration" has been given, by Defence Minister Pearkes. The federal government has a national obligation rather than a provincial one, but it collects taxes in this area also and such returns thereby reduce the net outlays on shipbuilding. The federal government has the important duty of spreading its ship contracts but the claims of this area are strong for a fair share.

Both governments must be aware of the need for having as much work done in Victoria as possible. The employment picture here is not good and it will be worse if local yards are left out in the cold. Inevitably that will invite both federal and provincial assistance through unemployment and welfare benefits. Much of such aid can be saved if local yards are shown a preference in the building of the ships in question. Both the economics and the humanities of the situation should impel more than a mere promise of "consideration."

Interpreting the News

Cabinet Has Rate Control

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — If the railways get a freight rate increase based on the prospects of a potential wage hoist, they will be doing something never done before.

That is what they propose to look for — as they indicated in Montreal — to cover a future new $60,000,000-a-year wage bill before granting any labor concessions.

What are their chances of getting a freight boost of around 20 per cent from the Board of Transport Commissioners to meet workers' demands before starting to pay?

Right now, perhaps somewhat better than in the past.

Deperding on a number of circumstances, they could be good — at least for a substantial part of that 20 per cent.

But the railways still would have to overcome precedent, for the rate-setting board always has shied away from granting increases on the basis of prospective costs, even though it has the power to do this.

For their part, the railways always have steered away from asking in advance for freight increases to cover future wage increases, probably on the ground that this would be an invitation for labor to step in and try to gobble up any new revenue they got.

This time it is different. The non-operating unions have agreed to accept the wage-increase report of a federal conciliation board, implementing which the railways say would cost them $60,000,000 a year if extended to all applicable employees.

The railway move in making the wage increase dependent on the freight increase is regarded here as a shrewd tactical stroke. But the prospects of the railways getting what they want, and quickly, are somewhat problematical.

For one thing, they are not likely to get a hearing before the transport board until early October. The board has a tight fall schedule.

For another, much will depend on how vigorous a fight might be put up by the eight provinces — all except Ontario and Quebec — that have been battling against every freight increase since 1946.

Federal government policy could have something to do with it. Government spokesmen have been issuing hold-the-line admonitions to management and labor.

While authorities believe the government could not direct the board's initial decision, under the Railway Act it certainly could step in after a decision was made to change it any way it wanted.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and Kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

I SAW John Barrymore on television the other night. There were others in the picture too, of course — Charles Chaplin is the only person I know of who appeared alone in a film from beginning to end — but none of these counted. All the world's a stage, but when Barrymore bestrode the stage the world narrowed to him and no one else. Certainly he always believed so and not without some warrant. In the resurrected film I saw he dominated every scene.

One thing TV does in screening old motion pictures is to refresh one's impressions of actors of former renown. I suppose this film would be some 25 years old and generations of film performers—a generation in filmdom is of short duration—have come and gone since it was made. Few of them could hold a candle to Barrymore.

I never cottoned too much to him in his heyday, perhaps because I fancied him too egotistical, and, like Raymond Massey in our own day, too theatrical in his performances. He was a mountain of ego all right and flamboyant in the extreme. He seemed to be reminding one, no matter his role, that it was John Barrymore one was watching.

Yet the other night I enjoyed him immensely, even if he "hammed" all over the screen. Perhaps his long absence had made my heart grow fonder. He played the part of a play producer who was a kind of Svengali without hypnotism. It suited him inordinately, if only because unlike most film stars who might essay such a role he was a stage actor of dramatic plus before he turned to films. If all movie actors had to graduate in this fashion they might better claim the name of actor. Barrymore's verbal outpourings and declamations in this role, even if all so much hokum in the particular context, had the stuff of greatness about them. It was impressed upon me that if extravagant gesture and emphasis are to hold sway the thing to do is to pile it on. Barrymore piled it on so much one couldn't help but admire his virtuosity.

Sometimes I have felt that good acting implies that the actor so sinks himself in his part that his own personality is hidden. Very few actors have ever been able to accomplish this successfully unless camouflaged by a beard or other grease-paint addition to their faces. Even if they could change their native mannerisms their likenesses give them away. Alec Guinness and Ralph Richardson are the only two film actors I can think of who with clean-shaven faces can make you forget their identity.

Barrymore would never have agreed with this idea. To him, an actor was a person who acted a part but who even if disguised should nevertheless impart the weight of his own personality. He was a tragedian even in a comic role, and he never intended that you should be under any illusion about who was who. I suppose the really great actor becomes so full of his own conceit that ego becomes part of his trademark, forcing him to behave off stage pretty much as he does on stage. Barrymore belonged to this totem, like Henry Irving before him and before that David Garrick. Their business was to be "theatrical" and not to let you forget it.

In this TV picture, then, he strutted all over the place, posing and striking attitudes and obviously enjoying every minute of it. Yet he was magnificent in his "acting." I should think some present-day film "stars" would prefer such films were not resurrected. Besides Barrymore they seem anaemic.

Letter from London

Two Enterprises Ending in Smoke

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

ONE of those minor storms of righteousness, indignation and big business which occasionally shatter the placid English way of life broke the other day when it was announced that the Amalgamated Tobacco Company had acquired the controlling interest in the London Crematorium Company — best known probably for the fact that it established the first and most famous crematorium at Golder's Green.

The tobacco company declared that it was interested in the cremation company merely because it was a good investment, and the cremation company proclaimed itself horrified by the thought of being taken over by a commercial enterprise (the cremation company had itself managed to accumulate liquid reserves of more than $300,000 in addition to opening a branch at Woking), but was eventually let down by the Cremation Society—an organization designed to popularize cremation—which sold out its interest and left the defiance of the company so much hot air.

Lord Verulam, the president of the society, has resigned in protest and the chairman of the tobacco company said there was no intention of changing the policy of the cremation company. Mr. Hoddle, the assistant secretary of Amalgamated Tobacco, said opponents to the take-over were talking a lot of nonsense "wrapped up in piety."

It was appositely if crudely stated by one commentator that both enterprises ended in smoke, and that in the present state of medical opinion on smoking and cancer it was a logical development for a tobacco company to wish to oblige their customers to the end.

Cremation in Britain has developed rapidly in the last half century. At present more than 40% of people who die are cremated, and there is little doubt that more would be if crematoria were more accessible. Most crematoria are in the hands of companies, but there are some municipal enterprises, and it is a matter of fact that cremation companies do very well — that their shares are bought and sold on the stock exchange, and investments yield good interest. A considerable boost has been given to cremation by the ever-increasing cost of burial plots due to inflated prices of land.

The Cremation Society has always been concerned with so-called "ethical standards" of cremation and with propagating its virtues and economy. From the start it has been interested in investing in crematoria but it would be true to say that its dominant interest is in cremation as such rather than in any financial advantages. In the early stages, indeed, it had to fight bitterly against prejudice and superstition as well as a considerable element of ecclesiastical opposition.

It has been estimated that within a decade more than half the people who die in Britain will be cremated, and both municipalities and private companies are busily increasing the number of crematoria, of which there are fewer than a hundred in the United Kingdom.

The outcry which has followed the successful take-over bid for the first and possibly most successful cremation enterprise has something of the traditional hypocritical British attitude underlined by foreigners who always accuse us of exaggerated piety in normal business processes. No one expects an undertaker (mortician or funeral parlor to you) to operate as a charitable enterprise, or imagines that oil companies provide free gas for hearses. True, they usually expect the parson to go without his fee—but that is traditional.

But if we are to judge from the flood of verbiage which has followed the take-over we could assume that the new owners were going to do something fantastic in the way of streamlined efficiency, which would be repulsive. In fact it seems highly improbable that they would wish to interfere with the very lucrative business which has been managed with efficiency. There has been quite a deal of criticism of crematoria long before any tobacco company regarded one as a good investment. In one rural enterprise serving a wide area schedules are so tightly packed that a waiting room has been provided in which to keep the deceased if he misses his turn through a traffic jam. Undertakers have been warned that if they are late the customer will have to wait until the end of the day's business. It has led to some awkward situations.

The chaplain of one crematorium told me that he was most concerned about the "increasing indifference" of relatives to cremation. Logically he thought there might be little objection to the increasing tendency of relatives not to go to the crematorium but he found it embarrassing to say the final prayers to an empty chapel.

"More and more people regard the church service as the end, and do not regard the crematorium as the equivalent of the graveside. Another factor of course is the comparatively long distance to the crematorium from many places. It looks as though we will have to get back to professional mourners to restore the dignity of some cremation services," he said.

If we are practical and honest it would seem that there are plenty of ethical facets to be discussed without worrying unduly about a tobacco company acquiring control of one company — but then Britons always like wrapping a bit of piety around anything if it is possible.

First Things First

Standards of Education

(From The Edmonton Journal)

EDUCATION Minister Aalborg says "the paradoxical position of education today is that, while facilities in the past were never as good as they are now, there has never been the criticism of education that there is now."

Many persons surely will question whether there is, in fact, anything paradoxical about the situation. Better facilities, in the physical sense, are no guarantee of better education. Indeed, it is possible to put too much emphasis on physical facilities to the detriment of teaching and learning. Public appreciation of these two points is partly reflected in the current criticism which, so it seems, strikes Mr. Aalborg as strange dissatisfaction in the midst of plenty.

There is a school of thought in Canada and the United States today which finds the solution to most of our education problems in "more money." It was strongly represented at the National Conference on Education last February and may, for all we know, number Alberta's minister of education among its adherents.

No one can honestly deny that more money is required to solve some of the problems, such as the provision of additional facilities and teachers to meet the doubling of student populations during the next ten years. New schools, however, do not necessarily mean better learning; nor new teachers, better teaching.

Learning is a process which takes place in the minds of the students. It is usually encouraged but not guaranteed by the presence of the students in classrooms. The same applies to the presence of teachers; yet the teacher undoubtedly is the most important instrument in education.

If we are to have not merely learning, but better learning, which surely is wanted and needed, then we must provide better teachers. The government to which Mr. Aalborg belongs has unfortunately lowered the standards for entrance into the teaching profession. This is one reason for public dissatisfaction in the midst of physical plenty.

After the teacher, the important instrument, if such it may be called, is the curriculum. Its standards, too, have been lowered; and this is another reason for widespread criticism.

Last come the physical facilities. Certainly these are, in most of Canada, better than ever before; and that is a very good thing. Let us, however, put first things first. The paradox, if there is any, is that, while the physical facilities have been so improved, the standards of entrance to teaching, though initially raised, have lately been allowed to fall, and the standards demanded by the curriculum also have been let down.

The Packsack

of GREGORY CLARK

AN ACQUAINTANCE of mine who belongs to what he describes as the comfortable class has had a good deal of trouble with one of his sons. His other children demonstrated a proper regard for money and other worldly goods. But this son worries his parents because he seems to prefer to give his money away. Last year, at college, his liberal allowance he squandered, not on the natural wild oats that are condoned by rich and poor alike, but on helping fellow students less generously endowed with cash. He was, his father told me, an easy mark.

Not only did he share his money. He gave away clothes, shoes, books. It was obvious, when his father went into the matter with the successful businessman, that the young man had no sense of material values whatever. True, he was an excellent scholar. He took honors in everything, including the classics. But otherwise, no sense of values at all.

I was present the other day when the youth was being bawled out in preparation for his entering college again this month. His allowance is being drastically cut.

"The secret," concluded his father, at the end of the lecture, "is, be big-hearted; but never go short."

That appears to be a pretty good maxim for the prosperous.

With the Classics

Before the beginning of the years
There came to the making of man
Time, with a gift of tears;
Grief, with a glass that ran;
Pleasure, with pain for leaven;
Summer, with flowers that fell;
Remembrance fallen from heaven,
And madness risen from hell;
Strength without hands to smite;
Love that endures for a breath;
Night, the shadow of light,
And life, the shadow of death.

Letters to the Editor

Labor Foolishness

According to news reports, the Montreal labor leader, Claude Jodoin, has intimated that the governments, federal and provincial, should start a program of public works to take care of unemployment in various areas of Canada. This statement is in line with his ideas outlined when addressing a Congress of Labor gathering in Winnipeg last April, where he stated that the federal government should do two things: lower taxes and increase pay to workers. What a suggestion as a solution!

The recent statement placing [illegible] employment on the doorsteps of governments would show how ignorant he is of conditions here in B.C., where $52,000,000 of construction contracts are months behind schedule because of strikes, picket lines and what have you.

Wouldn't the picture of unemployment get progressively worse if the governments introduced such foolishness in the summer months, trying to compete with bona fide contractors under favorable working conditions? Some projects might be undertaken in lieu of relief, when climatic conditions prevented some construction work.

I recall a prime minister of the United Kingdom (Sir Winston Churchill in early 1954 if my memory serves me correctly) was interviewed by a labor delegation requesting certain legislation. His reply was: "Away with you, you employees and employers; get together and settle your own grievances. The less the governments interfere, the better for all."

Campers' Licences

Now with the call for more camp sites is coming the suggestion that a fee be charged for each night's stay in these camps. While I feel that the taxes we pay throughout the year are more than high enough to allow us the use of small sections of our Province to camp in during vacation time on a no additional cost basis, I am certainly opposed to the nightly charge proposal for the following reasons.

First, it will tend to destroy the unwritten laws of good camping by encouraging people to take the attitude that they need not bother themselves because they are paying for it anyway.

Second, it will require a full-time attendant at each camp to collect the tolls; then the expense will likely exceed the income.

Third, such a system will lead to the best-paying camp receiving the most attention and others which are less accessible and less used being allowed to go to pot.

Those who want to use the camping facilities could take out an annual licence for a nominal fee and the money could be used to provide more and better facilities.

I feel that if it ever becomes necessary to gather revenue from the Forestry Camps, then the licence system would be far more practical and convenient and that we would find our couple of bucks, or what fee was required, being spent where it was needed rather than on camps that paid best.

In Appreciation

May I use your column to express my thanks to and appreciation of the young men of the Sertoma Club who so kindly supply transportation for visitors to the cemeteries on Sunday afternoons. Their kindness is a great boon to elderly people who do not have cars of their own and found the long wait for returning buses very trying.

Esquimalt Tories Face Seating Fight

The big B.C. Conservative Association leadership convention is expected to open in Vancouver Thursday with an explosion over qualifications of eight of 12 delegates named at a nominating convention in Esquimalt early last month.

Esquimalt elected mostly delegates who are in support of leadership candidate Dr. Desmond Kidd.

The credentials committee will have to decide if the delegates are eligible to be seated at the convention, expected to draw some 600 Tory representatives from all parts of B.C.

The move to unseat the Esquimalt group came after the pro-Kidd delegates were named as official delegates. Supporters of the other leadership candidate, Deane Finlayson, say their man will win by four to one on Vancouver Island.

A spokesman for the Esquimalt delegates said yesterday that the majority of the nominees had held executive positions on the executives of either the Victoria or Esquimalt-Saanich federal ridings.

But a petition asking that the delegates be unseated states that the eight nominees, including association president W. J. Hughes, were not and are not members of the Esquimalt branch.

13 Churches in Sector Project

Drive Starts Soon

Thirteen churches in Greater Victoria Sunday will begin a two-month "sector project" designed to make parishioners more aware of their stewardship duties.

Local campaign is part of a Canada-wide movement sponsored by the Canadian Council of Churches.

Churches participating will be St. Paul's, Esquimalt; St. John's; St. Matthias'; St. Mark's; St. Richard's, Gordon Head; St. David's; All Saints', View Royal; St. Peter's; St. Columbus, Royal Oak; Gordon United, Langford; and First Baptist Church.

DETAILS SUNDAY

Pastors will furnish their congregations with details on Sunday, and the first sector training dinner will be held in St. John's parish hall at 6.29 p.m. Tuesday.

A counsellor from Toronto, Rev. Malcolm Blackburn, will attend the dinner for instructional purposes, according to Rev. J. A. Roberts, rector of St. Paul's, Esquimalt, who is director of the Greater Victoria sector project.

"The project is a two-month educational process to teach people about stewardship. It is a way of challenging our people to their responsibilities," Mr. Roberts stated.

MID-ISLAND SECTOR

A mid-Vancouver Island sector, including United, Anglican and Presbyterian churches from the Albernis, Courtenay, Cumberland, Nanaimo, Ladysmith, Chemainus, Duncan and Lake Cowichan, will also begin Sunday, according to Rev. Brian Page of Duncan.

Some 70 to 80 men in this group will have their first training dinner at Benny's Cafe, Parksville, Wednesday.

$12,000 Insurance On Drowned Wife

HULL, Que. (UPI) — A 22-year-old Hull steelworker was accused yesterday of not disclosing that his wife had been insured for $12,000 at the time of her drowning last July.

Detective Emile Carpentier testified that Gaston Nicholas, accused of murdering his pregnant wife, had told him following the drowning that there had only been a $500 policy.

The testimony came at a preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Jacqueline Nicholas, 19, drowned in the Ottawa River July 26 when she toppled from a canoe in midstream. Nicholas told police that he had tried to save his wife, a non-swimmer, but that she sank and drowned.

Nicholas was arrested two weeks after the fatality.

Insurance agent Maurice Martel testified that a $1,000 insurance policy had been taken out Nov. 4, 1957, and that a second one for $5,000 was issued just before the drowning. Both policies carried double indemnity clauses.

The Crown contends that Nicholas deliberately drowned his wife to collect the $12,000 from insurance policies.

Two Crown witnesses testified they saw the husband of the drowned woman standing up in a canoe seconds before it capsized.

Okanagan Charge

'Small Clique Monopolistic'

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Okanagan fruit grower charged Monday that a "small clique" of wholesalers are the only ones permitted to buy B.C. fruit.

He is Alf Biech of Oliver, central secretary of the Okanagan-Kootenay Co-operative Growers' Association.

NOT SATISFIELD

Mr. Biech addressed the 15th annual meeting of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers here.

Mr. Biech said many growers are not satisfied with the monopolistic sale of Okanagan fruit by B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd.

"Their policy is to sell only to a few wholesalers, and nobody else can buy," Mr. Biech said.

$1 PER BUSHEL

"You can buy MacIntosh apples in the Okanagan for $1 per bushel, but in Vancouver they are 17 cents a pound," he added.

"Yet, if I bring fruit to Vancouver to compete with the wholesalers, I can be apprehended and fined."

Canadians spend $194,450 per day for their local daily newspapers.

Last Licks

Hundreds Watch Fishing

Seine boats made good hauls while getting in their last licks at the immense sockeye run in Juan de Fuca Strait yesterday, while hundreds on the waterfront watched them fishing one to three miles off Clover Point.

The seiners were averaging 100 to 300 fish a set. Each set takes about 90 minutes to complete.

ORDERED OFF

The International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission ordered Canadian fishermen off the grounds as of 6 p.m. last night for seiners and 6 a.m. today for gillnetters — to enable American fishermen to catch up.

Canadian fishermen were 539,000 fish ahead of the Americans, for a total of more than 4,000,000 fish, probably the greatest catch yet. The international commission is charged with attempting to equalize the catches of Canadian and American fishermen.

Officials said it probably means the end of the season for the Canadians, as the run will likely be over before the closure is over at 6 p.m. Sunday for the gillnetters and 6 a.m. Monday for the seiners. Also, rough weather is approaching.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

With three of its members contesting the four final places in the Totem Tournament at Jasper last week, the Victoria Golf Club may have set something of a record.

Winner of the men's event was Dr. George Bigelow, the Victoria club champion, while the runner-up was Gordon Verley, who although entered from Vancouver, is still a member of the Victoria club.

In the women's event Margaret Todd represented the Victoria club although she lost out in the final.

Dr. Bigelow's win at Jasper was not out of turn. He has made six trips to the Alberta playground in quest of the Totem and in 1939 and 1955 he got as far as the final and then failed to cinch the issue.

This time the Doc played at the top of his form throughout the week, and putted extremely well on Jasper's broad acred putting greens.

"I think I had fewer three-putt greens than most of them," he said, in explanation of his victory.

Gordon Verley, who won the trophy for the Victoria club last year, also played well and knocked out some formidable U.S. opposition on the way, was hardly so steady as his rival in the 36-hole final.

In adding the Totem to the Colonist Christmas Tree Trophy, which he has won for the past two years, Dr. Bigelow is now the holder of two of Canada's most ornamental golfing trophies.

BUSY BEE WAKEHAM—Last season young Bill Wakeham served notice that he was about to put Victoria on the golfing map when he won in quick succession the City, provincial and Dominion junior championships.

This year the keen youngster failed to hold his national title, but he has shown excellent form in a number of open and club events.

In addition to taking the Nelson open recently, Wakeham has revealed a fine competitive spirit in many other events. Only last weekend he lost by the narrowest possible margin to Laurie Kerr in the semi-final of the Colwood championship.

The City and B.C. closed champion took a single hole lead at the 16th hole with a bogey five after placing his tee shot in the woods. Wakeham blew his advantage when he put his second into a trap and took two shots to get out. The next two holes were halved enabling Kerr to qualify for a final spot against his buttons partner George Andrews.

On Sunday Wakeham moved over to Uplands, another of the Victoria clubs in which he holds a membership, and here the youngster shot a brilliant 69 that made him medalist in the championship there.

Frank Scroggs the defending champion took 73.

TO HONOR PHIL TAYLOR—Victoria Golf Club members are putting on a dinner Monday, Sept. 29, to honor Phil Taylor who retires at the end of the month after having been club professional for 34 years. There should be a good flow of nostalgic rhetoric and other things as the evening wears on.

Although he is now removing himself from the professional cares, Phil, who remains a club consultant, is finding more time than ever to show he is still no mean performer on the links.

Last weekend Phil scored three deuces at the second, eighth and 13th holes and at none of them did he have to sink a putt of more than four feet.

Phil, now 67, is getting to the stage when any day we may be hearing that he has gone round the course using only one stroke for every year of his age.

The price of golf in the Victoria area is still comparatively inexpensive — in comparison to club subscriptions and entrance fees on the Mainland and south of the border.

Yet even at today's prices, the cost of golf in the earliest days of the game here, looks fantastically low.

Eric Parker, Victoria club secretary, was handed over by Arthur Musgrave a receipt issued by the club to one of its earliest members.

The receipt was for $11.50 made out to Neville F. Townsend on Feb. 19, 1895; $10 was for entrance fee and $1.50 for three months subscription.

Colonel Parker said he had a visitor out at Oak Bay this week who told him the subscription at his club in the deep south was $5,000 a year.

LAST CHANCE FOR MATSON — Draw for the Matson Trophy to be played at Uplands Sunday will be made tonight. The handicap championship event of the season, the Matson is over 18 holes and is open to members of all Vancouver Island golf clubs.

'Y' Swimmers Splash Again

Victoria's Flying "Y" swim squad, fresh from enjoying one of its finest seasons ever, will hold a workout in preparation for the forthcoming season Thursday at the Crystal Garden Pool.

President Bob Johnstone will be on hand to officially open the new season for both juveniles and juniors. The workout is scheduled for 6.30 p.m.

Tryouts for the swim club will be held at the YMCA pool Saturday starting at 6.30 p.m. Any youngster over eight years of age who feels capable of swimming fast enough in any of the competitive strokes is invited to attend the workout. Swimming starts at 6.30 p.m.

Regular training practices will be held at the YMCA Sept. 17, at the Crystal Garden pool Sept. 18 and at the YMCA Sept. 20. The midgets will swim at 6 p.m. and the juniors at 7 p.m.

The club, which wound up its fine season by winning the grand aggregate at the Kelowna Regatta for the first time in ten years, will have a new coach this season in the person of Dr. James Portelance.

Dr. Portelance, along with Bruce Warburton, Alice Genge and Gail Parker will form a new senior swimming club.

Slow-Playing Excelsiors Capture Boxla Opener

TRAIL (Special) — Brampton Excelsiors, playing slow, deliberate lacrosse and using their weight to good advantage, opened defence of their Minto Cup Canadian junior lacrosse championship here last night with a 7-6 victory over Victoria Junior Shamrocks.

The Rocks, used to a fast-breaking style of play, found themselves hemmed in most of the night by the stiff-checking Excelsiors, who had a weight advantage of 10-15 pounds per man. Brampton, heavy favorites to repeat their triumph of last year over the Shamrocks, slowed the game to a walk in spots and the change was just enough to throw the young Irish off stride.

Though outplayed in the first quarter, the Shamrocks built up a 3-2 lead, but dropped back by a single goal, 5-4, at the half and remained there until the final whistle as the clubs matched goals.

SHOWERS SCORES TWICE

Jack Showers, the stocky speedster who has been a playoff standout, led the Rocks again last night with a pair of goals. Stu Smith and Bob McKee, both watched closely throughout, each scored once. The other Irish goals went to Mike Gates and Bob Bateman, both replacements picked up from New Westminster's junior Salmonbellies.

Bobby Davidson, picked up from Long Branch by the Excelsiors for their march west, scored twice and starred for Brampton along with goalie Mike Savage.

McKee put the Shamrocks ahead at 1:14 of the opening quarter. Davidson and Bert Naylor scored for Brampton, but Smith and Gates both pulled the trigger on odd-man plays to send the Rocks into the second quarter ahead, 3-2.

ONLY GOAL

Brampton controlled play from then until the last few minutes of the game. Showers raced the length of the floor to beat Savage with Brampton pressing to get Victoria's only goal of the quarter.

Getting the jump for most of the loose balls and rebounds, Brampton took the lead to stay on goals by Wayne Thompson, Jim Shropshire and Ken Richardson.

Davidson scored once in the third quarter and did a tremendous job killing off penalties as the Rocks failed to capitalize on their power play. Showers got the goal back at 9.11 on another brilliant individual effort.

Shamrocks came alive in the final period after Bruce Wanless made it 7-5 at 2.27. Bateman scored on a rebound after Savage had robbed McKee and Showers on ticketed shots, but the Shamrocks couldn't beat the Brampton goalie for the tying goal.

Series Shift Likely

TRAIL — It appeared almost certain here last night that the Minto Cup Canadian junior lacrosse series will be shifted to Victoria after tomorrow night's second game.

Doug Fletcher, representing the Canadian Lacrosse Association, will meet with representatives of the B.C. Centennial Committee today to discuss the move following the disappointing turnout for last night's opening game between Victoria Junior Shamrocks and Brampton Excelsiors.

"We had only 714 fans here," Fletcher said. "And we need about 2,000 for the first two games if we are to keep the series here. The Centennial Committee has underwritten the series to the extent of $3,000 but with another crowd like last night's even that wouldn't be enough.

Floor of Victoria's Memorial Arena is currently undergoing repairs, but Fletcher has been informed that the Arena can be ready on 48 hours' notice. Third game is scheduled Saturday.

"I can only make a recommendation to the CLA," Fletcher said. "However, if I feel the crowd isn't going to warrant keeping the series here, then I will definitely recommend that the series be moved."

Cougar Coach NHL Veteran?

By JIM TANG

Victoria Cougars would like to sign a "name" playing coach and are hoping that it might be either Cal Gardner or Johnny Peirson, well-known veterans who still have enough of their ability left to be extremely useful in a Western Hockey League setting.

The report came yesterday from Pat Egan, last season's playing coach who had just arrived back from a trip to Boston, where he did what he could to line up player help before returning to Victoria with his family.

Egan, who presumably will carry on as manager if a playing coach is obtained, said that he felt that there is "a 50-50 chance" that the Cougars will get either Gardner or Peirson. However, neither player has yet been approached about the possibility of taking on the Victoria job and Boston Bruins, who own both players, have not yet agreed to let either player talk contract with the Cougars.

It seems that Gardner may be the more likely prospect for Victoria. The husky centre, who will be 34 Oct. 30, left the National Hockey League after the end of the 1956-57 season to take a job as playing coach of the Springfield Indians, Boston's American Hockey League farm club. However, Boston this year has an agreement with Providence, where Johnny Crawford has the coaching assignment, and it may be that Gardner would be willing to move to Victoria to continue as a coach.

Peirson Had Poor Season

Peirson, 33, is a right-winger who averaged 20 goals a season in his best NHL years. He retired after the 1953-54 season but only missed one season. Last season he got into 53 games for the Bruins but his two goals and two assists hardly make him a prospect for a regular NHL job this season.

It is understood that he has a good job outside of hockey and that it is doubtful if he would consider coaching if it involves playing.

In any event, be it Gardner, Peirson or somebody else, the Cougars will do what they can to get a playing coach.

As for playing help, Egan was able to report that the Bruins will send some of their talent to Victoria. Just how many players or who they will be won't be known for some time. The Bruins open their training camp at Boston Sept. 14 and Egan will fly to Boston two or three days later to see what he can get.

Egan reported that Gordie Haworth will be back but that Nels Bulloch will do his playing this season for Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League. Chances of getting Gordie Wilson, the smooth centre, back seem slim. Wilson, Egan reported, was drafted by Springfield and is no longer Boston property.

Training Camp in Nelson

Meanwhile, plans are being completed for the opening of the Cougars' training camp at Nelson Sept. 27. Egan stated that all players owned by the Cougars have signified their intentions of playing, including, perhaps, Freddy Brown, who left the club early last season to return to his family in St. Paul. Brown was obtained along with Carl Kaiser in the deal which sent Marcel Pelletier to Vancouver.

No exhibition games have yet been lined up but Egan plans to play two or three games, probably against Okanagan Hockey League clubs, before the Cougars kick off the WHL season at New Westminster Oct. 8.

Expected at the Nelson camp are Pelletier, Kaiser, George Ford, Murray Wilkie, Enio Sclisizzi, Doug Macauley, Doug Anderson, Haworth, Jim Pilla, Dave Stewart and, perhaps, Brown and Clare Wakshinski.

On the business front, the Cougars are continuing to sell shares to raise the money needed to start the season and club officials are highly gratified at the response to their new season ticket-selling plan. Tickets went on sale Monday at the Hudson's Bay Co. and Egan labelled the response as "terrific."

Pirates Strong in Second

Giants Take Nosedive

Pittsburgh's amazing Pirates continued their late-season surge yesterday, taking a pair of one-run decisions from the slumping San Francisco Giants, 4-3 and 2-1.

The double victory widened the second-place Pirates' lead over the third-place Giants to 4½ games and left them trailing the league-leading Milwaukee Braves by 6½ games.

Elroy Face, the Pirates' ace reliefer, gained credit for the regular-game victory, relieving rookie George Witt in the ninth inning with the score tied, 1-1.

In his eight-inning stint, Witt gave up only six hits, fanned four and walked five.

A single by pinch-hitter Ted Kluszewski in the bottom of the ninth sent Bill Mazeroski home with the winning run.

Meanwhile, the Milwaukee Braves took advantage of an error by first baseman George Crowe to score two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning and edge the Cincinnati Redlegs, 3-2. The victory cut their "magic number" from 10 to 9.

In the American League, Preston Ward blasted three home runs as the Kansas City Athletics outslugged the Baltimore Orioles, 8-6.

Cleveland Indians were also in a hitting mood, pounding New York Yankee pitching for eight runs in the fifth inning of a five-inning, rain-shortened contest to take a 9-2 decision.

More Than 150 Snipers Expected

Record Navy Rifle Meet

By EILEEN LEAROYD

The biggest full-bore rifle competition to be held on the Island in recent years, will be held at Heals Range starting Thursday, Sept. 18.

It is the Navy's 10th annual Pacific Command Rifle Association meeting. With a greater entry than ever before, the event will cover a full four days.

About 150 marksmen are expected to compete.

Entries are already in from 12 HMC ships, from HMCS Naden, HMCS Malahat; a 12-man team of soldiers from Headquarters B.C. area, a 6-man team from the RCAF at Sea Island, teams from the PPCLI, from all reserve units here, and individual entries from up-Island and the Mainland.

First day of the shoot will be given to "Centennial Matches" and a new trophy presented by the City of Victoria. These matches are fired under service conditions—no slings and service issue sights—and include deliberate fire from the prone position, and rapid and snap at ranges 200 to 600 yards.

Friday, the second day, will be what is known as the Queen's Medal Practice. This is again fired with no slings and "iron sights" and as well as deliberate and snap matches, there will be a run-down from 600 to 300 yards. There will also be Bren gun and Sten gun matches.

Saturday and Sunday's matches will make up the two big aggregates. The first aggregate is closed to RCN snipers and the second is open to all comers. There are also prizes for greenshots, tyros and cadets.

Among the 30 to 40 hotshot .303 marksmen coming from Vancouver will be Cpl. Jack Cramer of the Seaforth Highlanders.

CPL. JACK CRAMER
. . . Bisley shot

Cramer, only BC man to make the Bisley team to England for next year's Imperial Matches, lived in Victoria for some 10 years and is well-known here. He will be accompanied by his wife "Jackie" also a keen rifle shot who competed in the Ottawa shoot this year.

Once a member of the Canadian Scottish Regiment, Cramer has been a member of the B.C. team to Ottawa for 10 consecutive years. He was well up in making his place on the 18-man Bisley team, placing ninth.

The RCN's big shoot will wind up Sunday afternoon with a prize-giving cocktail party and presentation of trophies by Commodore G. V. Groos.

Drakes Face Rugged Foes

Seattle Ramblers arrive in Victoria Friday, an American team bent on teaching Oak Bay Drakes a lesson in Canadian football.

Ramblers play Drakes Friday night at Royal Athletic Park at 8, and Drakes find themselves cast in the unfamiliar role of underdogs. A look at the Ramblers' record shows why.

Ramblers are an independent amateur club without a league to play in. Their players are culled from college and high school ranks, and for eight seasons now they have been playing an exhibition schedule anywhere they can get a game.

The club plays Canadian rules and over the years has proved adept at our version of the game. In 1950, first season as an independent club, Ramblers compiled a 6-2 record. Last year they won nine games while losing only once.

LARGE CLUB

Head coach Don Sprinkle is bringing a group of 60 players, coaches and managers with him for the game. Drakes will likely strip 24 men. Oak Bay will play a return game at Edmonds, Wash., Oct. 11.

Ramblers are not an especially big club, but have their share of heavy linemen. Leading the way in the line is Bill Castrow, a 6' 7" tackle who weighs 240 pounds.

Quarterbacking will likely be shared by Frank Bly, ex-Washington State star, and Bob Lydum, 21-year-old former high school flash rated as the best signal-callers on the club. Ramblers will run out of the T and the Notre Dame box formation.

Drakes, who have scored 54 points in league play this season without being scored on, will be without the services of star fullback Ken Higgs for the first half of the game. Higgs will be working, but should be available for the second half.

Canadians Still 'Alive' In U.S. Meet

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Canada's Bruce Castator and Eric Hanson won their second-round matches in the United States amateur golf championships Tuesday, but the third surviving Canadian, Gordon Ball, was knocked out of the competition.

Castator, the 1958 Canadian champion, piled up the best Canadian margin with a 4 and 3 victory over Hawaii's Yukio Kashiwa. Hanson scored a 1-up victory over Jack Zimmerman of Dayton, Ohio. Ball was eliminated by Phil Rodgers, La Jolla, Calif., 4 and 3.

All the Canadians are from Toronto.

ROBBINS WINS

Lieut. Hillman Robbins of the U.S. Air Force, the defending champion, defeated Navy Lieut. Bruce Cudd, a former Walker Cup player, 5 and 3.

King Fisherman Entries, Page 9

Harvie Ward, who held the title two years before Robbins won it, got the scare of his life from 18-year-old Jack Nicklaus.

Reliables Rex Baxter, Bill Hyndman, Bill Campbell, Arnold Blum and Dick Yost were eliminated.

TIES RECORD

Ward just managed to win, 1 up, over Nicklaus, and equal Lawson Little's record of 15 consecutive match play victories in the U.S. Amateur.

Don Cherry, who has played on Walker Cup and America's Cup international teams, played some of the finest golf of his career to eliminate Hyndman, 1955 runner-up to Ward, 2 and 1. Cherry was three under par for 15 holes.

Columbia Leading In Yachting Trial

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Columbia defeated Vim in heavy seas Tuesday and greatly enhanced its chances of being picked to defend the America's Cup against Britain.

A few minutes after the race ended W. A. W. Stewart, chairman of the seven-man selection committee, announced there would be another race between the two craft today in what already is the longest final showdown series in history of the cup.

Expert opinion here was that all Columbia would have to do is win today to be selected to defend the cup against Sceptre, the British challenger.

This marked Columbia's third victory in five starts in the final series against the 19-year-old Vim.

NEW YORK (AP) — The America's Cup yacht races will be reported over CBS radio network in daily broadcasts starting Saturday, Sept. 20.

The broadcasts will originate aboard a coast guard cutter and a navy blimp patrolling the 24-mile courses. Races in the best four-of-seven series will be held daily except Sunday.

Albions Win Cricket Event

Albions won the Victoria and District Cricket Association's knockout cup competition Saturday at Beacon Hill Park by defeating Five C's by 24 runs and two wickets to spare.

Bob Mainwaring (38) and Bickmore (68) topped the Albion batsmen, who declared at 149 runs for seven wickets. Jim Richards topped the losers with 44 runs and also led the bowlers with four wickets for 55 runs.

Baseball Telecasts Unchanged

The major leagues Tuesday discussed but failed to take any action on the controversial question of big league broadcasts and telecasts being beamed into minor league territory.

At the annual joint meeting of the National and American Leagues in Chicago, steps were taken to revise the bonus rule and set up machinery for realignment of the minor leagues. The majors also voted another $500,000 to the minor league emergency fund to help deserving minor league clubs in financial straits.

However, on the radio-television question, which the minors have long contended is wrecking minor league baseball, it was all talk and no action, despite the warning of commissioner Ford Frick, a longtime critic of the majors radio-TV policy.

A nine-man committee was appointed to study the feasibility of a new bonus rule and to submit a plan at the December meeting in Washington.

Another committee will work on the realignment of the minors from a triple-A classification on down and will also have a working plan ready for the winter meeting.

Nothing was done about the much-talked-about expansion of the two major leagues.

DON LARSEN, the Yankee fireballer who achieved baseball immortality by pitching the only perfect game in world series history in 1956, may be the forgotten man of the 1958 series. Larsen, who has a sore arm and hasn't pitched since Aug. 16, was not included among the players listed by the Yankees for this season's series. Also among the missing were pitchers Murry Dickson and Tom Sturdivant . . . Neil Hagbig, a centre, guard and linebacker cut by the Green Bay Packers, has checked into the Saskatchewan Roughriders camp . . . Accrington Stanley, in a break with tradition, will play a third division soccer match against Brentford under floodlights Friday night instead of on Saturday afternoon to avoid the counter-attraction of a match between Wolverhampton and Blackburn only a few miles away.

MAL ANDERSON of Australia scored an easy 6-1, 6-0 victory over Johnny Bassel of Toronto in the second round of the third annual international tennis tournament in Toronto yesterday. Scoring first-round victories were Denmark's Kurt Nielsen and Mario Llamas and Pancho Contreras of Mexico. Rain washed out most of yesterday's scheduled matches . . . Four teams of salt-water fishing experts headed out to sea today at Wedgeport, N.S., to compete in the 15th international tuna cup match . . . A. J. BERGMAN, a 72-year-old Yankee fan, is so confident that the New Yorkers are pennant-bound that he is making plans to walk from his home to New York to see the series—a distance of some 350 miles. Bergman, who has walked to about a dozen world series, says he has walked to New York 30 times and to Chicago 25 times and estimates he has walked about 300,000 miles in his lifetime . . . Jimmy Skinner, former coach of the Detroit Red Wings, yesterday was named the team's head scout. General manager Jack Adams also announced that Gus Mortson, the club's last holdout, had agreed to terms . . . Bill Juzda, former National Hockey League defenceman, has signed to coach the St. Boniface Canadiens of the Manitoba Senior Hockey League.

Utilities And Papers Favored

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were irregularly higher in moderate trading on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

Southern Canada Power was featured in utilities, up 5 points at 50. Shawinigan A hit a new high of 33, up ½. B.C. Phone slipped ⅜ at 40⅝. Up ¼ was Calgary Power at 76¾.

Base metals were active. Canadian British Aluminium was up 2¼ at 12¾. Hudson Bay off ½ at 50⅝ and International Nickel up ⅜ at 81.

Imperial Oil eased ⅛ at 44½. Calgary and Edmonton gained ½ at 30½, a new high. Interprovincial Pipeline was up 1⅛ at 53¾ and Trans-Canada Pipeline up a point at 35, a new high.

New highs in papers were Price Brothers at 43½, up ¼ and Crown Zellerbach at 55 up 1½.

Stocks Edge Higher

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market edged higher in moderate trading. Some of the steam was pushed out of the rise by profit-taking which reduced some of the strong gains recorded Monday.

Industrials and base metals were ahead but golds and western oils lost all of their earlier gains to close narrowly lower.

There continued to be some signs of jitters among investors as they watched the tense international scene closely and remained on the sidelines. Two low-priced speculatives — New Hosco and New Mylamaque — accounted for a quarter of the day's volume.

Goodyear Tire had the best gain among industrials, up 3½ points at 163½. Ford A, ahead two at 97, Quebec Natural Gas, General Motors, Weston A, Anglo Canadian Pulp and Paper and Dominion Stores were ahead at least a point. Most losses were fractional with the odd exception among lightly-traded stocks.

Mines and oils had similar patterns but senior base metals were firm with International Nickel up ¾ at 81. Low-priced issues in both groups moved in a 15-cent range in most cases.

Blue Chips Soar

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market came within a shade of setting a new record high with the leadership centring on the highest grade stocks in the nation.

When the market got into the rarefied atmosphere of early 1956 a considerable amound of profit-taking developed which brought, prices down from the topmost levels. But the close was higher all around.

At the peaks the net gains ranged to more than 3 points in the main list. The high-priced office equipments were up about eight points in International Business Machines and Addressograph-multigraph.

Steel shares proved the strongest group. Even after realizing set in. The motors had one of their best days in recent sessions. Chemicals ran up sharply. Buying lifted metals, liquors, drugs, tobaccos, some of the tires, televisions and special issues. Rails enjoyed a good market and so did the oils. The latter, however, were among the first to turn irregular on realizing.

Lucky Lager Gains

VANCOUVER — Strong features among industrials included Trans Canada Pipeline at $35; Imperial Investment at $13; Okanagan Helicopters at 3.90. Lucky Lager also traded higher at 5.75.

Ocean Cement was dull at $14½.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain prices showed some irregularity.

There was an increase in hedging sales of flax and some selling orders associated with better harvest weather. Flax prices showed hesitation but there was some firming trend later in the session. Some export buying reported indicated sales to the United Kingdom.

The oats and barley trade included shipping orders and a smart export business in barley for the United Kingdom.

Rye trade was quiet and prices firmed up on occasion with other grains.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included: United Kingdom 800,000 bushels, Germany 20,000, Hong Kong 20,000, Venezuela, a small lot.

Wheat and rye attracted scattered buying support and moved moderately higher at times while other grains and soybeans held mostly within minor fractions under previous closes.

King Fisherman Entries

Coho Run at Qualicum

Entries in The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest confirm reports of continued excellent fishing in Cowichan Bay and improved fishing in the Qualicum Bay area.

Anglers are still getting big springs in Cowichan Bay, latest entries showing 25 salmon of more than 20 pounds, including two of 30 pounds. There were also many more in the 15-20 pound class and enough coho to indicate that the start of the annual run of silvers is at hand.

Coho are the main offering off Qualicum Beach. Most are under nine pounds but lucky anglers are hooking into bigger ones. A variety of lures, including bucktail flies, are being used.

Late entries also include more big tyees from Nahmint Bay, including a 52¾-pounder taken by Fred Bartman of Seattle and several of more than 40 pounds.

Bennett Cerf...
the laughingest man alive

Jovial Bennett Cerf has launched a one-man war! He is fighting for more humor in our everyday lives, because he claims that in these days of crisis and worry, the world has forgotten how to laugh. The famous TV panelist has some wonderful ideas for getting more happiness out of life. You'll enjoy studying these ideas in the Star Weekly, as Charles Dexter tells the interesting story of Bennett Cerf and his intriguing campaign for humor.

Other important features include the 48 prize-winning recipes of the Star Weekly's National Contest; J. B. Priestley asks acidly, "Why Aren't Christians Against Sin?"; "A Plutocrat Tours Russia"—the hilarious adventure of a journalist who toured behind the Iron Curtain in a swank chauffeur-driven limousine; and comic, gardening and sport sections. Bride-to-Be Waits In Vain at Church

EDMONTON (CP) — A bride-to-be waited in vain at the church Monday but her intended couldn't appear. He was in jail for stealing a bicycle.

Robert Boucher, who pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 10 months on the charge, said he was celebrating his forthcoming marriage Sunday night and didn't remember taking the bicycle.

"I woke up this morning in jail and I was supposed to be getting married," he said.

Court was told Boucher has received sentences totalling 18 years since 1943, mostly for theft.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

More trouble for TV.

The U.S. Federal Communications Commission yesterday began a court-ordered [illegible] into influence peddling in regard [illegible] Mary Ann [illegible] Pittsburgh. An FCC member resigned last spring in the Mary case with U.S. officials [illegible] two months away more "sensational" disclosures can be expected.

Texas player Bobby Stewart says an agent who posed [illegible] To Tell The Truth wants half of her $[illegible] winnings. She wants police to take care of the agent, who does not work for the show or [illegible].

On 21 Monday quiz master Jack Barry made an unprecedented decision: "We have not behaved your Lucy [illegible] of charges has shown was rigged."

Are observers [illegible] it all getting a little silly?

U.S. TV station [illegible] according to FCC figures grossed $[illegible] last year, up [illegible] per cent from 1956. But expenses climbed 10 per cent and the net profit of the [illegible] before taxes was down almost [illegible] per cent. Of the 500 stations [illegible] most money was [illegible].

TV BITS: Best bets for viewers today are specials by Mel [illegible] in Battle and the Sport Hall of Fame [illegible]. Davy Crockett again. Lawrence Welk's south show starts and best movies are "Appointment with Venus" and "Command Decision" . . . Miss America pageant had a 42.3 rating, highest CBS ratings on a Saturday in three years.

In a reversal of policy, Warners rehired Cheyenne star Clint Walker yesterday with the pay boost he wanted. However, he'll co-star with Ty Hardin this year . . . Buckskin may replace Jefferson Drum on NBC soon . . . ABC has dropped its Mad Magazine and Jack Albson shows for lack of sponsors. Replacements will be Broken Arrow, One Step Beyond and Colt 45 . . . Perspective will be replaced on CBC by two National Film Board series, Frontiers and Candid Eye . . . Mary Garden, now 81, has approved a TV series based on her singing career . . . Barbara Kelly (Mrs. Bernie Braden) has quit BBC's version of "What's My Line" because "I've been in it too long."

Today's Highlights

7:30 Walt Disney brings back Davy Crockett. By the way, channel 5 now has this show at 9 p.m. Fridays (channels 2 and 6).

9:00 Kraft mystery is "Trick or Treat" (channels 2, 4, 6). Lawrence Welk's variety show returns replacing Top Tunes and New Talent, with an orchestra of teenage musicians (channel 5). Farley Granger as the young Sigmund Freud in a Steel drama called "The Wound Within" (channels 7 and 12).

15 Years in Hiding

Russian Nazis To Die

MOSCOW (AP)—Five Russians described as traitors who collaborated with the Nazis have been sentenced to death by a military tribunal in southern Russia. A sixth defendant received a 25-year prison term.

The Soviet Army newspaper Red Star said the six "renegades and degenerates" had been found after hiding out for 15 years.

The six went over to Hitler, the newspaper said, when the Nazis occupied the southwest part of Russia, and "killed and tortured hundreds of Soviet people." All the defendants pleaded guilty to the charges of war atrocities, the newspaper said, and were sentenced to face a firing squad.
